

DRUK WHITE
COMICS

BATMAN

A man in a dark, textured cape and a grey tunic is shown in profile, looking towards a computer monitor. The monitor is on a desk and displays the text "DISTRESS IN LADAKH!" in large, bold, red letters on a white background. The monitor has a silver Apple logo on its bezel. On the desk, there is a keyboard and a mouse. The background is a dark, stone wall.

DISTRESS IN LADAKH!

Drawn by Hussein Al Baiaty
Written by Max Dehne
Edited by Kim Leinum
Composting Information by Ralph Loiolo
A Druk White Comics Production
In Association with Basic Initiative

India is it? I am assuming then you will not be back for dinner sir. I prepared you and

Very well sir.

This is urgent Alfred. Kids at the Druk White Lotus school are using their composting toilets improperly. Batman must fix this problem.

Batman hops in his Batwing in hopes that he is not too late to help. Precious compost could be created in just six months.

Don't wait up Alfred

Batman makes quick work of the mighty Himalays in the Batwing.

The composting toilets are a delicate balance of pathogens which is any bacteria or virus that can harm humans, and the technology that is attempting to destroy the pathogens. When you put new waste in the system you start the cycle over.

As the open side fills the closed side will decompose. Bot sides should never be open at the same time.

One side of the toilet must stay closed for six months for the waste to decompose completely so it can be used as soil.

The bacteria in the composting toilets eat and digest your waste removing pathogens from the system. In this process your waste is turned into usable soil.

Munch Munch, the bacteria goes to work

When they're done eating, out comes usable soil

With a fresh batch of composted waste you can use it to plant fresh vegetables or give already growing plants food

Ah, these tomatoes are delicious.

And to think the soil came from the toilets.

THE END

DRUK WHITE COMICS

IN ASSOCIATION WITH

BASIC INTIATIVE